In January 2016, Daytona State College will launch a new Associate of Science in Engineering Technology (ASET) degree. Workers with skills in additive manufacturing are among the industry's most pressing needs. It involves a process for fabricating parts, layer-by layer, directly from a 3-D digital model and assists in manufacturing high-value, complex and individually customized parts. The new degree track requires purchasing several testers and a new 3-D printer to meet the needs of the additive manufacturing specialization.
