SUMMARY ANALYSIS

The Department of Labor and Employment Security (DLES) was created in 1978 when it was removed from the Florida Department of Commerce. It consisted of one administrative support division, six program divisions, and administratively housed several independent entities. The process for the abolishment of DLES began in the 1999 Legislative Session, and subdivisions and programs of the department were transferred or repealed through several legislative bills until the department was formally abolished by the Legislature in 2002.

Current statute provides DLES with authority to enter into an agreement with a county tax collector for the purpose of appointing the county tax collector as the department's agent to accept applications for licenses or other similar registrations and applications for renewals of licenses or other similar registrations. Since DLES has been abolished, this statute is obsolete.

The bill repeals the section of law described above to remove it from the statutes.

The bill has no fiscal impact.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Background

Department of Labor and Employment Security

The Department of Labor and Employment Security (DLES) was created in 1978 when it was removed from the Florida Department of Commerce.¹ It consisted of one administrative support division, six program divisions, and administratively housed several independent entities.

The process for the abolishment of DLES began in the 1999 Legislative Session,² and subdivisions and programs of the department were transferred or repealed through several legislative bills until the department was formally abolished by the Legislature in 2002.

Section 288.038, F.S., provides DLES with authority to enter into an agreement with a county tax collector for the purpose of appointing the county tax collector as the department's agent to accept applications for licenses or other similar registrations and applications for renewals of licenses or other similar registrations. The agreement had to specify the time within which the tax collector must forward any applications and accompanying application fees to the department.

Since DLES has been abolished, this statute is obsolete.
